Court Overrules I. C. C. The court overruled the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday and sustained the Commerce Court in the "tap line cases." The Interstate Commerce Commission had held that the short tap line railroads owned and operated by lumber companies and other industrial concerns which connect plants of these industrial concerns with trunk line railroads, were not common car-riers, perticularly as to what is known as "proprietary traffic." On this ruling, the Interstate Commerce Commission had refused to permit the trunk lines make allowances to these tap lines freight charges in proportion to the length of the haul, based on a joint rate for a through route. The Commerce Court nullified the or-der of the Interstate Commerce Comission, holding that the tap lines were common carriers, even as to "proprietary freight." The Supreme Court affirmed the Commerce Court ruling. The opinion was read by Justice Day.
